Together, we can do better

Brian L. Renfro

This month's magazine is devoted to the Letter Carrier Political Fund (LCPF), NALC's political action committee (PAC). It is a chance for us to thank LCPF contributors while educating NALC members on the importance of the LCPF and how crucial it is to achieve victories in our legislative and political efforts for members.

If you are a current LCPF contributor, I sincerely thank you. I appreciate your commitment to securing letter carriers' jobs and retirements for years to come. Your contribution ensures that letter carriers' voices are heard on Capitol Hill and beyond.

We have had some recent legislative victories, most notably the enactment of the Postal Service Reform Act in 2022. We have maintained our reputation as a respected voice among federal lawmakers. Yet, despite our successes and powerful influence on Capitol Hill, many of our members will likely be surprised to learn that 88 percent of NALC members do not contribute to LCPF.

In some unions, 12 percent of members participating in anything is positive. I know, and every letter carrier reading this knows, that in our union, this is not the case. We are a union with 94 percent voluntary membership, a higher percentage than any other union. That is just the start. For many years, NALC members have been the most engaged and active group of union members in this country.

Even at 12 percent participation in the LCPF, we are strong. We have a large PAC. Our LCPF, combined with our efforts in Washington, DC, and our equally important efforts by our members in every state, have allowed us to fight off repeated attacks and pass legislation to benefit our members. But in NALC, we don't settle for where we are, and we don't ever accept that we can't get better.

Having 88 percent of our members not participating in LCPF creates a gigantic opportunity for us as a union. We have much to protect and much to accomplish. Together, we have a significant chance to grow and achieve our goals. So, what are those goals?

All active letter carriers want long-term job security, a positive collective-bargaining environment, and good retirement benefits when our time comes. Retired letter carriers want their well-earned retirement benefits protected. The more than 100,000 letter carriers who spent time as non-career employees want to be able to have their non-career time credited for retirement purposes. Our retirees who are negatively affected by the grossly unfair Windfall Elimination Provision (WEP) and Government Pension Offset (GPO) want those provisions repealed so they get what they have worked for and earned. It takes legislation to make these goals a reality.

The easiest step any NALC member can take toward strengthening our capacity to achieve these goals is to participate in the LCPF by making a small biweekly or monthly contribution. A little bit from a lot of people to create strength reflects the spirit of solidarity that is a big piece of the foundation of organized labor in America and the NALC.

I know that 88 percent of NALC members have not made a conscious decision not to participate in LCPF and our legislative and political efforts. They haven't been asked. No one has given them the opportunity to participate.

If you currently do not participate in LCPF, you now have that opportunity. This magazine includes all of the information you need to join your brothers and sisters in standing together to grow our influence.

As letter carriers and federal employees, Congress initiates policies that affect our collective-bargaining rights, health care and retirement benefits, as well as the operations of the Postal Service. That's why the people elected to federal office matter and profoundly affect our jobs as letter carriers and our futures as retirees.

A strong LCPF allows us to work to elect pro-letter carrier candidates who will support the Social Security Fairness Act (H.R. 82/S. 597), a bill that would repeal the WEP and the GPO. The same is true for the Federal Retirement Fairness Act (H.R. 5995), a bill that would allow federal employees, including letter carriers, to buy back their time served in non-career positions—such as a city carrier assistant, transitional employee or casual—making it creditable toward their service under the Federal Employees Retirement System. Increasing LCPF participation is key to making these goals a reality.

Together, we can grow our influence and capacity to win for letter carriers on Capitol Hill. By taking the simple step of making a small, recurring contribution to LCPF, we can rise together. When we look at virtually any point in our union's 135-year history, we see examples of the collective action and solidarity of NALC members growing together and achieving victories. 2024 is another opportunity for us to do just that by increasing participation in our PAC. Together, we can and will do it.

Journalism: Promise and problems

Philip
Dine

As we know, letter carrier safety unfortunately is a mounting concern for all of us. You shouldn't have to worry about being attacked on the route. Fortunately, public awareness of the problem also is rising, thanks to your work getting word out about the robberies and assaults targeting letter carriers to the tune of 2,000 since 2020.

Alerting folks around the country is the first step in addressing the problem, and you are influencing the national discussion, as you did with another existential threat to letter carriers and the Postal Service—the artificial financial crisis generated by the pre-funding mandate. Your “Enough is enough” rallies, 10 so far including in Minneapolis three days ago as I write this, combined with your media presence when crimes occur, such as recently in Boston, are sparking extensive coverage on TV and radio, in newspapers and online.

Why the media attention? It's not as if there's a deficit of news these days; we have Europe's largest military conflict since WWII, a volatile and tragic situation in the Middle East, a presidential election heating up at home and more.

I attribute the interest to three factors. To the power and clarity of your message—the attacks are surging; the consequences are dire for our safety, for the security of mail meant for residents and businesses, for local quality of life if we're hampered in our ability to serve as the eyes and ears of the community; and deterrence is needed, including through federal prosecutions with severe penalties. To the messenger—America's letter carriers, who enjoy strong respect across geographic and political lines.

And, referring to this column's title, to the current status of the news business itself. The national media is facing its own existential crisis, its credibility tanking as a result of ill-fated decisions to jettison the craft's timeless principles of objectivity, curiosity and fact-based reporting, and instead promote political agendas. In 40 years of practicing, teaching and writing about journalism, or dealing with media outlets in my current capacity, I have never seen journalism veer so sharply off course.

To be fair, there are many talented journalists at major outlets, but you would be startled at how often, on a variety of news topics, I find myself urging some to put aside their preconceptions and absorb the facts. And, as courteously as possible, to suggest they recall why they entered the profession in the first place (which was, ideally, to inform folks, not to influence them). Many of our most fabled TV networks and national newspapers are mere shadows of their former selves, engaging in narrative-driven reporting that aims to reinforce what their viewers or readers already believe. This, in turn, threatens our democracy—actual journalism unites us around shared facts and common information, while advocacy journalism further divides us, exacerbating the rampant polarization that makes governing more and more difficult.

Fortunately for us, the rallies are taking place on the local and regional levels, where the crimes occur—and where journalism still is practiced largely as intended, through reporting that seeks to get out the facts and let the audience decide for itself. So please continue your extraordinary work of delivering a focused, powerful and succinct message, whether at the rallies or in separate media interviews, to reporters eager to learn and intent on serving the communities they cover; the very communities you deliver in. With any luck, national reporters are watching—and recalling.

Speaking of journalism being practiced as intended, I'm pleased to note that the magazine you are holding has—once again—been recognized for excellence by the International Labor Communications Association, the country's largest entity for labor media. As reported on page 7, in ILCA's 2023 media contest The Postal Record garnered eight awards: five for writing (outpacing other unions), two for illustration/design and one for social media. This included three first-place honors.

I attribute the magazine's recognized quality to three factors (yes, as I've periodically mentioned, journalists tend to deal in threes...): the dedication and skills of Mike, Rick, Jenessa and the current/prior editorial assistants, Sarah and Joelle; their complementary interests and backgrounds; and the cohesion and teamwork they exhibit as they put this magazine together month after month.

The synergy between our efforts to provide relevant, accurate and timely information to you, and in turn your media engagements aimed at informing the public and its representatives, goes a long way toward explaining why NALC's communications are second to none in the labor movement, and more broadly why our union is as effective as it is. The credit rests with you.

Minneapolis letter carriers declare, ‘Enough is enough!’

“All of us are angry,” NALC President Brian L. Renfroe told a crowd in Minneapolis, MN, on Jan. 7. “We are furious. Our members are under attack.”

Since 2022, Region 7, which includes Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota and South Dakota, has seen more than 30 attacks and robberies targeting letter carriers. That includes the shooting death of Milwaukee Branch 2 letter carrier Audre Cross in December 2022.

In mid-November, two Minneapolis carriers were robbed at gunpoint within 24 hours of each other. “Fortunately, in these two cases, nobody was physically harmed, but the trauma lives,” Branch 9 Executive Vice President Joseph Tiemann said at the latest “Enough is enough” rally. “This is something that a letter carrier should never have to experience.”

“We’re working longer hours now because of the staffing and stuff like that. So now, a lot of times we’re working, it gets dark,” Region 7 National Business Agent Patrick Johnson told the crowd of Twin Cities carriers at the rally. “You’ve got to pay attention when you’re delivering in the dark, but now you’ve got to watch over your shoulder for violent criminals to come and attack you for an Arrow Key.”

Branch 9 veteran carrier and shop steward Manon Wojack said carriers want to go home safely and noted that she doesn’t feel safe “on a daily basis.”

Unfortunately, it’s an epidemic seen throughout the United States.

“More than 2,000 letter carriers have been victims of violent crime. This is a growing problem not just here in the Twin Cities or in the state of Minnesota, but around the country,” Renfroe said. “It’s unacceptable, it’s appalling and it’s out of control. No workers should ever live in fear while they’re doing their job. This violence against our members must stop.”

“We’re here because this violence should come with an increase in protection, awareness and community. But instead, as is often the case, it feels like we only have one another,” Renfroe added.

The NALC president noted that, of those 2,000 cases, only 14 percent have led to an arrest and federal prosecution. Prosecutions that occur at the local level include penalties are not as severe as those available to federal prosecutors.

It takes a joint investigation among the Postal Inspection Service, the U.S. attorney general’s office and a local police force to hand the case to federal prosecutors. That, combined with the low number of such cases being prosecuted in the first place, reduces the deterrence to potential lawbreakers who aim to attack letter carriers.

“Do you know what message that sends to people on the street?” Renfroe asked. “Our members are left to defend themselves, because the Postal Inspection Service is not doing its job, and the Department of Justice is failing to prosecute the criminals responsible.”

Renfroe called on the Inspection Service’s leaders to do more: “Times have drastically changed, and methods for protecting our members while we do our job must reflect the current circumstances.”

In addition to more frequent and stronger prosecutions, President Renfroe said that NALC would like to see newer technological versions of the Arrow Keys that criminals often are after.

He added that NALC is working with members of Congress on legislation to help speed up these improvements. He vowed that NALC would make such legislation NALC's top priority in Congress.

The rallies are part of NALC's effort to get out a multifaceted message:

- to the Postal Service to better protect letter carriers on their routes;
- to locally based federal prosecutors to take these cases and apply the harsh federal penalties that local prosecutors do not have available;
- to residents to alert authorities if they see anything worrisome and to preserve evidence, such as doorbell or other surveillance videos, for use by investigators; and

- to their elected representatives to be aware of the need for solutions.

Another way NALC is getting out the message is through interviews with reporters for local and regional TV broadcasts, radio shows, newspaper articles and online news outlets about the surge in violence nationwide. Having the letter carrier perspective as a central element in these media reports increases community awareness of the issue and helps strengthen NALC's push for solutions. That is especially so because of the widespread public support for letter carriers, who in poll after poll for years have topped the list of the most trusted and highly regarded federal employees.

President Renfroe called on local branches to hold rallies such as the ones held in various cities in preceding months. Branch leaders are encouraged to contact their national business agents' offices for information and material to help organize a rally or for help contacting the media to amplify our message to their communities.

"Events like these make a difference and bring awareness to this growing problem," he said. "I encourage all NALC branches, especially in areas that are experiencing an uptick in crime, to mobilize and plan similar events. When we all come out with a unified message, we are heard." PR

MDA March Branch Challenge

It's time for the March MDA Challenge. MDA has registered all branches, which means that every branch has its own web page for the 2024 campaign.

Branches can confirm that their branch has been registered at mda.donordrive.com/event/NALC2024. If your branch is not registered, please contact Sabrina Allen of MDA at 312-392-1100 or at nalc@mdausa.org.

For the March campaign, at the end of the month, the top 10 NALC fundraising branches will receive recognition. Those branches that raise $500 or more with an online fundraising campaign will receive special prizes.

All checks must be sent with an allocation form to: Muscular Dystrophy Association Inc., Attn: NALC, P.O. Box 7410354, Chicago, IL 60674-0354.

Please remember to send Assistant to the President for Community Services Christina Vela Davidson copies of all items sent to MDA so that branches can receive proper credit for the 2024 campaign. Allocation forms are available on the NALC website at nalc.org/community-service/body/PDF-2023-NALC-Allocation-form-1-1.pdf.

If branches want any events to be shared in the magazine or posted on social media, please send photos and information to Davidson at mda@nalc.org or davidson@nalc.org.

The MDA Honor Roll, containing a final listing of all branch MDA contributions for 2023, will be in the April issue of The Postal Record. PR

RGA appointed

President Brian L. Renfroe appointed Chris Calica of Greater East Bay, CA Branch 1111 as a regional grievance assistant for Region 1 (California, Hawaii, Nevada and Guam).

Calica began his postal career in Concord, CA, in 1998. He has served the union in many capacities, from steward and branch executive council member to Customer Connect representative, EEO representative, dispute resolution team member and arbitration advocate. He served as 4th vice president of his branch from 2010 to 2012 and as 3rd vice president from 2013 to 2015. Calica has worked as a local business agent, and as a national assigned assistant for Region 1, since 2016. Recently, he was reelected as 4th vice president of Branch 1111. PR

Stay safe in cold winter weather

One year ago, in February 2023, Old Forge, NY, saw the coldest U.S. temperature recorded all year, minus 36 degrees Fahrenheit, according to Forbes. Though most letter carriers are unlikely to experience weather like that this month, it's important to be aware of the dangers that cold temperatures and conditions present to those who work outdoors.

NALC Director of Safety and Health Manuel L. Peralta Jr. said that one of the biggest problems when it comes to cold weather are the slips and falls that can occur in snowy and icy conditions. The chance of injury that comes along with icy conditions might be drastically reduced when proper protocols are followed, but when carriers are not provided with proper training, clothing and safe working environments, icy conditions have caused serious injuries and even death in some cases.

Peralta pointed to an incident that occurred in March 2014, when Leo Sucharski, a Buffalo-Western New York Branch 3 letter carrier, died after falling and hitting his head in the partially unplowed parking lot of the post office where he worked. The Buffalo post office had failed to move the trucks when the parking lot was plowed, leaving slippery conditions in certain areas of the lot. Peralta said that the Postal Service's failure to follow protocols for cold weather conditions was the cause of Sucharski's death.

In addition to safety measures being followed, it is important to have proper clothing so that cold weather-related conditions such as frostbite and hypothermia don't occur.

Cold weather conditions

It is critical to be well prepared and to be aware of the risks that can occur if someone is not properly dressed and is unprepared for the weather while spending prolonged periods outdoors.

One cold condition to be aware of is hypothermia, which causes the body to lose heat faster than it can be produced, resulting in body temperature drops. It also can lead to decreased brain function, making it challenging to recognize signs of the condition. Early symptoms to look for include shivering, fatigue, confusion and loss of coordination. Late symptoms that can be present are blue skin, dilated pupils, slowed pulse and breathing and loss of consciousness.

In chilling weather, it also is important to be on the lookout for frostbite. Most typically affecting the nose, ears, fingers, toes, chin and cheeks, frostbite is common in improperly dressed outdoor workers, and the risk is increased in those with reduced blood circulation. To catch early signs of frostbite, be aware of reduced blood flow to hands or feet, numbness, tingling, stinging, aching and bluish or pale skin. In extreme cases, afflicted areas may need to be amputated, so it is critical to be equipped for the weather.

Another related condition, trench foot, can occur when feet are cold or wet for long periods of time. It can arise in temperatures up to 60 degrees, so wearing proper footwear to ensure dry feet is necessary, even in warmer temperatures. With trench foot, skin tissue on the feet eventually begins to die and blood vessels shut down circulation to feet. Symptoms of trench foot include numbness, leg cramps, redness, swelling, tingling pain, blisters, ulcers, bleeding under skin and gangrene.

Lastly, chilblains are caused by repeated exposure to temperatures slightly above freezing to temperatures around 60 degrees. Chilblains is a skin condition that leads to skin becoming red and itchy. The condition is permanent and will flare up upon additional cold exposure. Common infection sites are cheeks, ears, fingers and toes.

Prevention

"The first rule of cold weather is to prevent hypothermia or frostbite by wearing the right clothing and consuming warm food and drink,” Peralta said. “The second rule is to know the signs and get to a warm place if the cold is getting the best of you. Warm up in your vehicle or a warm place on your route when you need to, and if you are experiencing problems, immediately contact your supervisors, or dial 911 if you feel it is an emergency.”

According to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), it’s important to wear at least three layers of loose-fitting clothing for better insulation and blood circulation. The inner layer should consist of wool, silk or synthetic moisture-wicking material. The middle clothing layer should consist of wool or synthetic materials for insulation in wet conditions. Finally, the outer layer should be a jacket that protects from wind and rain, while also providing ventilation. Accessories could include a hat that covers ears, as well as insulated gloves and waterproof boots. OSHA emphasizes that it’s crucial to wear clothing that keeps you dry and ventilated, while keeping extra clothing on hand in case of emergency.

“If you have any additional cold weather uniform items that are sitting in a closet, we ask you to gift or loan them to our new employees,” Peralta said. “Let’s all help each other get through another winter safe and sound so we can enjoy carrying the mail next spring.”

NALC wins eight communications awards

The International Labor Communications Association (ILCA), the largest and longest-standing North American competition for labor journalists, announced the results of its 2023 annual labor media contest on Dec. 18. NALC won eight awards, seven of them for work done by its Headquarters Communications Department, the other by a talented letter carrier who illustrated the cover of the December 2022 issue of The Postal Record. The contest, which drew thousands of entries from labor unions and related organizations across the country, was for work done in 2022.

Under Visual Communications, first place for Best Illustration went to Jorge Blas of Clearwater, FL Branch 2008 for his colorful cover illustration on the December issue of The Postal Record reflecting “The spirit of the season.”

In the writing categories, Writer/Editor Rick Hodges won first place in the Best Feature Story category for his November story, “Service dog helps carrier on the job,” about Buffalo-Western New York Branch 3 member Dwayne Jensen, an Army veteran with PTSD who carries mail accompanied by his trained service dog.

Hodges, Writer/Editor Jenessa Wagner and former Editorial Assistant Joelle Dine won first place in the Best Series category for their December “Spirit of the Season” package of community services stories, which featured the ways in which letter carriers and branches, through their good deeds, improved the lives of individuals and families.

Wagner was awarded an honorable mention in the Best Profile category for her deep dive in November’s “In his writing place” into retired Minneapolis Branch 9’s Vincent Wyckoff’s book writing, incorporating his quarter-century postal career, writing process and Minnesota landscape.

For Electronic Media, Legislative and Communications Specialist Madeline Alvis won third place for Best Use of Social Media for her compelling Feb. 4 Twitter graphic about Thank a Mail Carrier Day.

Postal Record Managing Editor Mike Shea won second place for Best Design for the May issue’s “Staying focused” cover, which depicted the presidential signing of the Postal Reform Act while noting that even with that achievement, NALC continues to work on its legislative priorities. He also won honorable mention in the Best Labor History Story category for his May article, “Up in the Air: How WWI pilots built the nation’s airmail network.”

Director of Communications and Media Relations Philip Dine won third place in the Best Column or Editorial category for his July Letter from the Editor, “Mission Accomplished,” examining how a military unit of African American women, who had resolved WWII mail backlogs in England and France, later became the first female unit to receive our nation’s top civilian honor, the Congressional Gold Medal.

NALC’s five awards in the writing categories surpassed those of other unions, including some of the nation’s largest. PR

Strangers spread love to those in need through the mail this Valentine's Day

A woman receives a letter from Love For Our Elders

The Valentine Project puts together Valentine's Day gift boxes for children with cancer or chronic illnesses.

Although Valentine's Day is usually about showing loved ones how much they are cared for, many nonprofits are spreading love to people they have never met this Valentine's Day by sending cards and gifts to people who are lonely on the holiday. These nonprofits aim to show people going through hard times that they are not alone, with a personal gesture of physical handmade cards and gifts.

One organization, Love For Our Elders, was created 10 years ago by Jacob Cramer, founder and executive director. After his grandfather died, Cramer started volunteering at senior communities, where he noticed that loneliness was a common problem; he described it as an "epidemic." The National Library of Medicine indicates that about 24 percent of U.S. adults 65 years or older are considered socially isolated—having infrequent social contact and relationships. To address this issue, Cramer established his nonprofit.

Family and friends of elders submit a short bio, as well as a photo and the mailing address of an isolated elder to Love For Our Elders, which posts around 30 on its website. Cramer said that more than 5,000 volunteers a month work with them, including students in 26 college and high school campus chapters who write letters to elders in their local communities.

Love For Our Elders is funded by donations; the sale of sweatshirts, mugs and their book, Grandma's Letter Exchange; and the collection of donations from unwanted gift card balances through a program called CharityChoice.

Every year on Cramer's grandmother's birthday, Feb. 26, Love For Our Elders celebrates "Letter to an Elder Day," when people are encouraged to write to any elder in their lives or to an elder that they don't yet know.

"It's super important after the holidays to connect with our elders because it can be a really lonely and isolating time and there's gloomy weather outside," Cramer said.

He added that one elder who received letters said she was "overjoyed with love and excitement for these cards and she's telling everyone she sees about the experience."

Love For Our Elders isn't the only organization that spreads love through the mail for Valentine's Day; Soldiers' Angels is a nonprofit that collects letters to send to hospitalized veterans at Department of Veterans Affairs hospitals, active-duty military bases and service members in deployment. Soldiers' Angels is funded by both corporate and private donations. The organization's goal is to do something nice for soldiers who often are away from their families during Valentine's Day. Amy Palmer, president and CEO, said volunteers choose from 163 sites to send their letters to—sometimes choosing sites with soldiers they know.

“Thank you all so much for what you do for us. It is truly appreciated,” one letter recipient said. “I am humbled to feel so much love and care from strangers. But you’re not strangers, you’re truly family.”

Another organization that sends endearment to those who need it is The Valentine Project, which mails Valentine’s Day gift boxes to children with cancer and chronic illnesses and their siblings, using the Postal Service to ship the packages to children nationwide.

Andrea Margida, president and CEO, and her family started the organization 14 years ago when her son volunteered at a camp that childhood cancer patients around the same age attended. He talked to a girl at the camp, and found that she had missed out on things that were normal parts of growing up. “His heart really went out to her,” Margida said.

She said that instead of Valentine’s Day being a day of fun, it often highlights these kids’ loneliness and isolation from their peers, so sending a card really makes a difference in their happiness. Her son set up surprise Valentine’s Day gifts for 88 kids with cancer that year—but that was just the beginning.

Every year, The Valentine Project sends 500 to 1,000 valentine gift packages with the help of about 1,000 volunteers. They receive funding from donations, and get donated materials needed for sending out letters from Amazon. The packages include candy, toys, puzzles and, sometimes, cards. To send these packages, they solely rely on USPS to get the kids their gifts because of the low shipping costs.

“I would like to thank the people who deliver mail and let them know that this is such a big deal for these children,” Margida said. “People don’t realize the impact it can have on someone.”

Another organization that helps kids through tough times is Braid Mission, a foster youth mentoring program. Its Cards of Hope program has provided letters of encouragement to more than 40,000 foster youths since 2014. Rebecca Edwards, co-founder and director, went to a foster care museum and saw a display that illustrated the fact that foster youth rarely receive birthday cards. After seeing the placard, Edwards and her co-founder, Christopher Chase, were inspired to do something to make special days for foster youths a little bit brighter.

They began collecting letters specifically aimed at making birthdays and holidays special for foster youths in the San Francisco Bay area. However, their program grew exponentially—especially during the COVID-19 pandemic, when people were searching for volunteer opportunities that they could perform at home. In 2019 they received 5,500 cards, in 2020 they received about 8,000, and in 2023 they received about 13,000 cards. Cards of Hope now sends general cards of encouragement and birthday cards to foster youths across the country.

To fund this effort, Braid Mission accepts donations and sells handmade cards on its Etsy page.

In addition to lifting the spirits of foster youths, Edwards said the program raises awareness and empathy for the feelings that foster youth are going through.

“These are children who have been separated from the people who are supposed to care for them through no fault of their own,” Edwards said. “It can be really lonely.”

Valentine’s Day is a time of love and warmth, so showing people, even strangers, care and attention can brighten a day that otherwise might feel lonely. These organizations and many others have created a way to show love and warmth using the unique power of the time-honored method of the mail. PR

Proud to Serve

Proud to Serve is a semi-regular compilation of heroic stories about letter carriers in their communities. If you know about a hero in your branch, contact us as soon as possible at 202-662-2489 or at postalrecord@nalc.org. We'll follow up with you to obtain news clippings, photos or other information.

Honoring heroic carriers

Heroism, like the mail, comes in many packages—think of police officers or firefighters. But for some citizens in need of assistance, their heroes come in the form of concerned letter carriers.

Letter carriers are members of nearly every community in this nation and know when something is wrong. Spotting fires and injuries, they often are the first to respond. The following stories document their heroism. For them, delivering for America is all in a day's work.

Carrier saves unconscious UPS driver from crash

May 9, 2023, was a hot spring day in Concord, CA, and Jack Roy, a 30-year member from Greater East Bay Branch 1111, was on his route. As he pulled into a suburban neighborhood, a UPS truck driver drove by on the other side of the street, so Roy waved at her, and she waved back.

A few hours went by, and Roy was driving out of a three-house cul-de-sac when he saw the same driver crossing in front of him. He couldn't see her face but nonetheless he waved again. This time she didn't wave back. Her head was facing up and Roy said, "I thought she was reading something...maybe there was some information there."

He soon realized that she was driving only a few miles per hour. When he saw the truck going at a weird angle toward the house adjacent to it, Roy put his truck in park, got out and sprinted after the UPS truck. Roy had been training for the Dipsea Race, a 7.4-mile challenge run, for the previous few months, so he utilized his running skills and quickly reached the UPS truck. He found the driver unconscious and foaming at the mouth, her upper body dangling off the right side of the seat, held in only by her seat belt.

He said he immediately steered the wheel away from the house, then grabbed the gear shift and "slammed it into park."

"I'm like, 'This is like out of a movie,'" Roy said. A passerby came and helped the letter carrier lift the driver upright, so Roy could turn off the vehicle. The man called emergency services, which soon arrived to tend to the incapacitated driver.

Roy later found out that the homeowner had no idea that his house nearly had a UPS truck-shaped hole in it.

This wasn't Roy's first heroic act as a letter carrier; in the 1990s, he received an award for heroism for saving a man who was nearly pinned to death by a car he was working on.

Couple saved from fire under their porch

Jonah Carey, whose route is in Batavia, NY, was picking up an additional route one dry summer day in 2022, when he spotted smoke billowing from underneath the porch of a single-family home.

"It didn't strike me as something that should normally be there," the five-year letter carrier from Buffalo-Western New York Branch 3 said.

The UPS truck Jack Roy managed to bring to a stop

Realizing that the front porch was on fire, he knocked on the front door, but there was no answer, so Carey called the fire department on his cell phone. "Then I decided I might as well try another door," so Carey went to the back door and knocked again, but still no response. He knocked one more time and this time a woman answered the door—she had been vacuuming the basement and hadn't heard the door the first two times.

Carey told her about the fire, so she went to wake up her boyfriend who was sleeping in another room while Carey scooped up one of her small dogs. The couple and their dogs were able to leave, and Carey stayed to answer a few questions from the police, then returned to his route.

Carrier sees fire in two-unit house

Tim Mattson was ending his route in Jamestown, NY, in December 2023, when he spotted smoke escaping from a second story window of a house divided into two apartments. The five-year member from Buffalo-Western New York Branch 3 knew that no one lived in the apartment on the second floor, but that a man in poor health lived on the first floor.

Mattson quickly banged on the front door until the man opened the door. The man was confused as he walked out onto the porch—he didn't understand the urgency of the situation until he gazed upward. "He looked up and he looks like he's in shock," Mattson said. The second floor had become engulfed in flames, which soon spread to the rest of the house.

Once the fire department arrived, Mattson returned to his truck. The carrier said that the house had since been demolished and that the side paneling of the house next door was still charred, as a result of the fire.

Preschooler in pj's found outside during freezing temperatures

One bitterly cold morning in February 2022, Dominique Brooks, a two-year carrier, began her route at an apartment complex in Richmond, MI, when she saw a small boy in the parking lot waving at cars as they passed by, wearing nothing but his pajamas and socks in below-zero-degree temperatures.

"I thought it was strange," Brooks said.

She looked around to see if he was with an adult—which he wasn't—and then went over to him, took her coat off and wrapped it around the little boy. The Mount Clemens Branch 654 member then called the police and her supervisor.

After a police officer and her supervisor arrived, the boy led them to where he lived. There, they discovered that the little boy's parents were asleep—he had escaped to have his fun waving at cars in the parking lot, while only the letter carrier noticed.

"After that, I just continued to deliver on the route," she said.

Carrier notifies tenant that his house is on fire

Christopher Sardynski, a CCA since July, was delivering on a Sunday in Cheektowaga, NY, when he turned onto a street and saw smoke coming all the way down the road. He thought that maybe someone had a fire pit going in their yard, but as he got closer, he realized that the house he was supposed to be delivering to was burning.

The Buffalo-Western New York Branch 3 member said he couldn't see flames, but he saw embers burning in the corner of the house producing smoke.

"You could see the heat coming from it," Sardynski said. "You could see the orange embers on burnt wood." A man wielding a 20-ounce water bottle was trying to put out the embers and smoke. Sardynski told him he was going to call firefighters, but the water-bottle-wielding man didn't want him to.

Sardynski called anyway. "I felt like I needed to call because that was the right thing to do," Sardynski said.

After alerting emergency officials, Sardynski carried on with his deliveries—starting with the woman who lived in the house and who, Sardynski said, was still eager to receive her package. PR

Dominique Brooks

Wilma Daley and the man she helped rescue

Eye on the elderly

On an early December 2023 morning in Grand Rapids, MI, the air was bone-chilling and there was snow and ice on the ground from a recent snowstorm.

Wilma Daley, a 26-year carrier, was just starting her route when she saw an elderly man she knew on the ground, fully dressed with only slippers on his feet.

The Branch 56 member didn't think she could get him back on his feet by herself because of his height, and she knew that he lived alone after his wife's death a few months earlier, so there was no one home to help. She began knocking on a neighbor's door, hoping to find someone to assist her. Unable to find anyone at that early hour, the man who had fallen suggested that they call 911. He thought it was the only way he would be able to stand back up, but Daley was able to find more immediate assistance when a FedEx driver arrived on the scene.

The two of them managed to get the man onto his feet and help him into his garage.

Daley said that the FedEx driver stayed with him after the incident, to ensure that he was able to get into his house.

Soon after, Daley knocked on the man's door to find him in a sling, with a broken bone near his shoulder. Daley said, "he was very appreciative" of her assistance, and had been able to get medical attention. PR

Art that's simply GOURD-geous

Mark Hoffmann in his home studio

Art has been in Mark Hoffmann's DNA since he was a little kid. "I can't remember when I didn't draw or do something," he said. And while he's always loved to draw Disney characters, what he puts them on has changed over the years.

He's experimented with mediums over time, including painting on wood and on Disney vinylmations figurines, 3-inch or 9-inch vinyl figurines with Mickey Mouse-shaped heads. "Disney created these things blank," he said. "They came with markers and the kids would draw on them. Then all of a sudden, all these artists got ahold of it, and then it just kind of blew up."

While he painted on vinylmations for a long time, he eventually he came to favor gourds—those hard-shelled fruits often sold alongside pumpkins. Some varieties can be eaten, but they can also be dried and used to make items such as musical instruments, utensils and decorative objects.

Why gourds? "People ask that all the time," the retired San Jose, CA Branch 193 member said. "It's really funny, because I used to do all these drawings and couldn't sell anything."

So, the artist and illustrator took what he was drawing on paper and vinylmations and put it on a gourd instead. "It just kind of took off," he said of his business. "So many people paint on paper and canvases—I didn't see anyone that really painted on gourds like that."

He realized that the shape was similar to a snowman, so he began making some gourd snowmen as gifts, but they didn't sell well at first either, Hoffmann said.

Then, "a couple of years ago on Facebook, somebody posted [a snowman] that they had and said, 'I got this from Mark 15 years ago.' All of a sudden, it just snowballed," he said. He's been making art on gourds ever since.

They're lifelong keepsakes, Hoffmann said, adding that they stay beautiful from year to year. "I have some that are almost 25 years old and still look the exact same as the day I painted them," he said. "People are really surprised at how durable they really are."

He begins by cleaning the dried-out gourd, sanding the hard shell and spraying it with a coat of white primer. He then creates the design with acrylic paint and then seals it with a finish.

From l: Candy corn-themed gourds, a vinylmation of Ursula from “The Little Mermaid,” as well as ostrich and other large Easter eggs. Below: One of his drawings on paper

Creating on gourds isn't the same as on paper. “Sometimes you've got to draw it on there differently just because of how the shape is, because it's not like a flat piece of paper. You've got to go with the movement of the gourd,” he said.

Hoffmann employs an assembly-line approach when doing many pieces at once in his home studio—a converted bedroom—but the time it takes to complete each design varies. A Santa or snowman can be completed in a day, but more detailed scenes can take up to a week, he said, adding, “It just depends. Now I have a whole lot more time because I'm retired.”

Hoffmann, who retired in April 2023 after 22 years delivering mail, devotes time to his art seven days a week. When inspiration strikes, he can keep it going into the morning hours. “Sometimes you get painting, and you could paint till 2, 3 in the morning,” he said.

He mixes it up for holidays, such as painting on ostrich and goose eggs for Easter, and he painted poison apples and candy corn on various shaped gourds for Halloween last October.

While Hoffmann creates bulk orders of crowd favorites, he also takes commissions, which range in price from $75 to $500, depending on complexity. “A lot of people have the Santas and the snowman, so I'm kind of changing it up,” he said. “Right now, I'm working on one that has some California poppies on it that's a custom order for someone.”

He posts his creations on Facebook, accessible at markhoffmann.com, as well as on his Instagram feed at @mjrhoffmann. “A lot of times, people just order off of what I post,” he said. His art has received international attention too, garnering requests from Denmark, Australia and Switzerland, and he's had many repeat customers. He's also begun attending craft fairs as a vendor to sell more.

One of his most memorable commissions is from a woman to paint a memorial gourd for her father, featuring cars that he loved. “But I'll try anything,” he said. “And I always say, ‘I'll send you a drawing first and then we'll tweak it if it needs to be.’ I mean, I wouldn't want to buy something if I didn't know what it was going to look like.”

For major holidays, he creates coloring pages for youngsters—or adults—to decorate. And three years ago, he illustrated a children's book, Little George and the Christmas Socks, for an author from New York. “He was another Disney collector and he found me through my Facebook page,” Hoffmann said. “He said he was looking for an illustrator, and I sent some ideas and some drawings, and he hired me.”

During the COVID-19 pandemic, he made yard signs with a little mushroom character that said, “Stay strong! Together we will get through this!” to help spread hope in his community and to raise funds for those in need. The signs got so popular that Hoffmann then printed the image on greeting cards, T-shirts and other items. He also painted small rocks with messages of inspiration. “I would just drop them and leave them along the trail wherever I walked, and people were finding them,” he said.

Hoffmann wants to keep his art hobby just that—a hobby. “I don't want it to get so big that I can't keep up with it—but I always have a waiting list of people,” he said.

“You have to be careful, because then it becomes a job, and I think it loses something. I do it now because I love it. Even if no one saw it or bought it or anything, I could probably still do it,” he said, before adding with a laugh, “but it is nice when they buy it.” PR

How LCPF and your state association works for you

NALC members meet with Rep. Nicole Malliotakis (R-NY) to discuss legislation that would help letter carriers.

For letter carriers, most contractual issues are dealt with locally, with their stewards or branch officers. When larger issues arise, they might go to the national business agent's (NBA) office or even NALC Headquarters.

But there are issues that can't be dealt with in collective bargaining and must be handled by Congress. There, on Capitol Hill, NALC works with House and Senate members to secure the future of both the Postal Service and letter carrier jobs. To do this work, NALC uses two tools: the Letter Carrier Political Fund, to help elect friends of letter carriers to Congress, and the NALC state associations, to help inform and educate the people elected to Congress about upcoming legislation.

Paul Rozzi, president of the Pennsylvania State Association of Letter Carriers, explains the importance of being involved in the legislative and political process by pointing to Article 43, Section 1 of the National Agreement. That section declares that Congress or the courts can change anything in the National Agreement. Rozzi tells NALC members, "Whatever you have today could be gone tomorrow." And that's where the state associations come in.

State associations exist in every state except Alaska, and they play a key role in NALC's legislative activities by developing valuable, positive relationships with each member of Congress. There is no better way to educate members of Congress and influence them to support letter carriers than having lawmakers hear the message from letter carriers who live and vote in their states or congressional districts.

"We deal strictly with our members of Congress," Alabama State Association President Antonia Shields said, "trying to get bills passed that are in favor of letter carriers."

Rozzi says he gets support from Pennsylvania letter carriers by explaining the various pieces of legislation to them: "These are the bills that are out there. This is how passing them will affect letter carriers. This is how not passing them or repealing them will affect letter carriers."

This isn't a new role for letter carriers—letter carrier activists have been doing the same for more than a century. In 1892, 41 letter carriers from 17 small Massachusetts cities met to discuss the equalization of wages—which they felt NALC wasn't doing enough about—and ultimately formed the Massachusetts Association of Letter Carriers of Second-Class Offices. By 1903, NALC had grown significantly, and state associations had been institutionalized as part of the union's structure.

The July 1903 Postal Record extolled the benefits of state meetings, including the promotion of mutual support, the sharing of opinions among branches and the opportunity to meet with their members of Congress. Over the ensuing decades, state associations continued to hold trainings and educational seminars on all manner of letter carrier topics, with one of their primary responsibilities always having been to work on legislative issues.

West Virginia State Association President Joe Paden, who has been the state president for an extraordinary 39 years, explained that beginning back in the 1980s, as a leader of the state association, he would travel to Washington, DC, twice a year to be briefed by Headquarters on the legislative agenda for letter carriers. "They basically trained us on the legislative process, on the issues," he said. "And then we made an attempt to go up on the Hill and visit our legislators."

Letter carriers meet with Rep. Lisa Blunt Rochester (D-DE) at her office in Washington, DC.

In 2006, the state associations' primary function of working on legislative and political issues was formalized. Delegates to the 65th Biennial National Convention in Las Vegas amended Article 1, Section 2 of the NALC Constitution for the Government of State Associations to read as follows:

Sec. 2. The objects of this Association are to assist the National Association of Letter Carriers in maintaining a more perfect organization and improving the Postal Service; to organize all letter carriers within the State; and to guide and direct all activities relating to legislation within the State. This Association shall have the authority to coordinate with the National Business Agent regarding seminars and training schools on State, District, and Branch levels, which shall be financed by the NALC and directed by the National Business Agent. Effective September 1, 2006, State Association financial resources previously expended on seminars and training shall be expended in pursuance of and consistent with the object stated above: 'to guide and direct all activities relating to legislation within the state.'

To accomplish this, state associations have letter carrier congressional liaisons (LCCLs) in place. LCCLs are constituents responsible for maintaining a relationship with one member of the House or Senate and their office staff in their home districts to complement the work done by Headquarters in Washington. The state association provides the LCCLs with the knowledge and resources needed to develop and foster these relationships.

This is not an easy task, as some members of Congress will not make time for union representatives, so much of the state association's work is done in this area. But it helps that NALC members match the makeup of their districts, which has allowed letter carriers to connect on commonalities and develop relationships with members of Congress across the political spectrum.

"We are a cross section of the society," Pennsylvania President Rozzi said. And that helps in finding the right LCCL to spread the message.

"We need to make sure [the LCCLs] are knowledgeable about our issues and also willing to stick to the messaging as well," Tim Fisher, president of the Arizona State Association, said. "Ideally, they live in the district. They understand what our goals are as an organization."

But understanding the messaging is not enough. Much of the work comes down to getting access, and that means finding LCCLs who can gain that access.

"You tailor things to each particular congressman, and you kind of watch who you are sending to meet with them," Rozzi said. In Pennsylvania, "we would send veterans, retirees, whatever."

In a state dominated by conservative politics, such as Alabama, Shields has to get creative in selecting carriers who can get access. "I look around the district and find someone who either knows one of their children, knows somebody in their family or has some kin to them," she said. "So, when we go in, they say, 'Hey, I played football with your son.' 'Hey, I was a cheerleader with your daughter.'"

"[The members of Congress] definitely do listen a little bit more with their constituents because it means more to them," Wisconsin State Association President Dawn Ahnen said. The presence or lack of that tie can mean a vote won or lost.

In West Virginia, Paden has learned that it can be just as important to develop a relationship with the congressional staff. "If you get to a staff member, maybe they will get the message to the member,” he said.

He recently sent two new LCCLs to meet with congressional staff back in West Virginia. He asked them to explain the importance of door-to-door delivery to the staff, personalizing it by asking the staff whether they want their grandparents to have to trudge through the snow to try to get the mail, if there is no door-to-door delivery.

Paden advised them not to introduce themselves as union members, and to instead introduce themselves as letter carriers. “They’re interested in legislation that affects their customers, like door-to-door delivery,” he said, adding that it helps the LCCLs get a foot in the door and get to know the staff.

Along those lines, Pennsylvania President Rozzi said, “Every year I tell them, find out if the staff is the same, reintroduce yourself and say that you’re staying in the role. Look up the staff for the representative. Where did they go to school? Did they do this? Did they do that? How [the representative] voted on various bills other than Postal Service bills. And then you go from there.”

Rozzi also suggested finding out what the representative’s areas of interests are, such as working on veterans’ issues or green energy, for example, and then trying “to fit our needs into that framework,” he said.

LCCLs should keep tabs on local opportunities and roundtables to remain engaged in more relaxed spaces. LPOs and the state association presidents can help identify those opportunities.

With some members of Congress, it’s about maintaining an already good relationship. “We talk about different ways to reach your representatives, whether they’re having a pancake brunch or a fundraiser,” Wisconsin’s Ahnen said. “Congresswoman Gwen Moore [D-WI] invites us to her birthday party every year.”

Ahnen also invites members of Congress to letter carrier events. “It’s a good bang for their buck,” she said. “You get 90-some people in one room.”

Most importantly, the LCCL must be persuasive, West Virginia President Paden said. “You’ve got to get the message to [the member of Congress]. What it is and what it means and how it’s going to be beneficial. If you don’t do that, you can’t expect them to vote for it or support it.”

To help, NALC President Brian L. Renfroe appoints legislative and political organizers (LPOs) to assist state associations in promoting and protecting letter carrier interests on Capitol Hill. LPOs help develop and implement plans specifically designed for the legislative challenges within each state. They assist with the education and training of other letter carriers, officers and rank-and-file activists to help carry out the plans.

In practice, this often involves the LPOs sending information about legislation as it is being introduced to the state association and the NBAs.

Ahnen said that in Wisconsin, that means receiving reports from the LPO and sending them along to the LCCLs. Most of the LCCLs will communicate that information with the congressional staff, but Ahnen stays on top of it. “If I don’t get a quarterly report or something, I’ll reach out to them and be like, ‘Is everything OK? Do you need some help?’” she said.

Fisher talked about receiving information from his LPO, John Beaumont, about the Social Security Fairness Act (H.R. 82). “We got a meeting with Rep.

Rep. Bobby Scott (D-VA) was invited by the Virginia State Association to address its state convention.

Andy Biggs [R-AZ] 30 minutes after John gave us information about H.R. 82.”

In addition to communicating with members of Congress, state associations hold conventions and trainings. The education involved here often pertains to pending congressional resolutions or bills, to how letter carriers can participate in legislative activities, and to how the overall political environment affects our jobs, the workplace and the Postal Service.

“We have our business agent come in and do training on legislation and bring our legislative person in from National to speak with us,” Shields said of the Alabama conventions.

In Arizona, the state association is running a retirement seminar this month. Fisher said he plans to use that training as a chance to talk to retiring letter carriers about relevant legislative issues and to encourage them to give to the political action committee (PAC).

NALC’s PAC, the Letter Carrier Political Fund (LCPF), works to help elect candidates who will support letter carriers and their issues. The state associations help with that effort, communicating to our members the need for political contributions.

Shields tells letter carriers, “This is like life insurance for your job. It’s job insurance.”

Fisher said that the conversation often becomes about which candidates NALC will support, but it’s not about party. “We’re going to support anybody that supports our issues,” he tells them.

In West Virginia, Paden will go to a branch meeting and make the pitch for contributing to LCPF. Then he has help from his LPO in signing up members at the meeting to contribute. “Once we make our speech, we can say, ‘And sitting right back there at that table is Rob, and he can sign you up today.’ ”

Because of the Hatch Act and its limits on what letter carriers can talk about on the clock, state association leaders have to find ways they can get the messages about legislation and politics to the NALC members in their state.

“I’ve been harping on this since the day I got in,” Pennsylvania President Rozzi said. “You have to mention it at meetings. You have to send it in the newsletter. But you have to go further. And that’s a process. Occasionally I’ll go and stand outside of certain post offices in the morning and try to talk to people.”

As Arizona President Fisher phrased it, “Honestly, I think that the reason that a lot of newer carriers aren’t all that familiar with the state association is because even at branch meetings, it’s not really something that comes up all that often, except when it’s state convention time or if you have someone on the state executive board who’s there to kind of give a legislative update on something.”

Paden agreed. Whether that’s to communicate information to members, branch officers, legislators or the public, “one of our main roles is to be the messenger.”

You can be a part of that voice; participation with your state association will provide you with training and information on local and statewide political efforts. New members bring fresh perspectives, renewed energy and unique ideas to these activities. Reach out to your local branch or state association to see how you can get involved.

Though not as well recognized as contractual work, this can make a major difference to letter carriers. “It’s every bit as important as everything else that the union does,” Pennsylvania President Rozzi said. PR

By making a contribution to the Letter Carrier Political Fund, you are doing so voluntarily with the understanding that your contribution is not a condition of membership in the National Association of Letter Carriers or of employment by the Postal Service, nor is it part of union dues. You have a right to refuse to contribute without any reprisal. The Letter Carrier Political Fund will use the money it receives to contribute to candidates for federal office and undertake other political spending as permitted by law. The Letter Carrier Political Fund (LCPF) is NALC’s political action committee (PAC). Using funds donated voluntarily by NALC members and their families, the LCPF supports federal candidates who stand up for the interests of letter carriers, regardless of their political party.

The political fund has protected and advanced the interests of letter carriers for decades. Just two years ago, the LCPF helped NALC gain enough allies in Congress to finally pass the Postal Reform Act. This law benefits letter carriers and strengthens the Postal Service in many ways. One of the most important was the end of the pre-funding requirement for retiree health care, which instructed the Postal Service to make billions of dollars in payments to the U.S. Treasury each year. The law also made six-day delivery permanent.

But our work does not end with postal reform. New challenges always arise, and the LCPF must be as strong as possible to tackle the challenges ahead and to continue supporting those who have supported us.

Campaign fundraising is heavily regulated by federal law, so union dues cannot be used for political campaign contributions. As a result, LCPF relies only on voluntary contributions from our members. The political fund helps to ensure that Congress hears our voices when it makes decisions affecting our jobs and our lives.

The LCPF is an essential tool for building NALC’s influence on Capitol Hill.

It provides direct support to federal candidates’ campaigns, giving them resources they need to communicate with voters and enabling NALC to interface in an unofficial capacity regularly. The old adage about the squeaky wheel is certainly true. We have a strong presence through our network of activists in every congressional district and in Washington.

For candidates in some races, reaching voters can require millions of dollars, which means that candidates—in-cumbents and challengers alike—need help raising the funds they need. Most candidates rely on their allies for help, and that’s where the LCPF comes in. The political fund ensures that our friends running for office can reach voters with their message.

As letter carriers know, Congress has enormous power over the Postal Service and our sister postal unions. Our health care, our pensions, and even our collective-bargaining rights have all been previous targets, and with a divided Congress, anything is possible. Our continued investment in supportive candidates is our best insurance policy. If we don’t stand up for those in Congress who protect us, those who want to take away everything we’ve earned will be left to prevail. The enemies of the Postal Service and anti-labor forces who want to weaken or even abolish collective-bargaining rights have their own allies, mostly corporations and wealthy individuals, with deep pockets. We cannot let our guard down and we must play offense by building our defense of letter carrier allies.

The political fund provides resources for get-out-the-vote efforts that reach out directly to union voters and help the candidates we support. Working in partnership with our sisters and brothers in the labor movement, letter carriers reach out to engage union members to urge them to vote for pro-worker candidates and help them with needs, such as registering to vote, finding their precincts, or voting by mail.

With the continued domination of dark money (unlimited quantities that do not require reporting on source/origin), those of us in the union space are up against some tremendous forces. The LCPF helps us level the playing field by investing in “super PACs” that are aligned with letter carrier priorities in the House and Senate, particularly in presidential election years.

All of these investments can happen only with the generous support of LCPF donors. The LCPF’s power is only as great as its level of support—and right now, 88 percent of those reading this do not give. Imagine the influence if 88 percent of our members contributed to the LCPF.

“A union has power when we all stand together as one,” NALC President Brian L. Renfroe said. “But more of us need to stand with the LCPF. The union needs many more of our members backing our political fund to make a real difference.”

To acknowledge those who support the LCPF, every donor is recognized each year in a special issue of The Postal Record. The list of donors who supported the LCPF in 2023 begins on page 30. The list includes the percentage of carriers from each branch and state that contribute and the per capita contribution.

If you didn’t give to the LCPF last year, please consider doing so this year. The amount you give isn’t important—getting as many carriers as possible to participate is the goal. Unity is our strength.

The easiest way to support LCPF is to sign up for automatic withdrawal of a small amount from your paycheck each pay period through PostalEASE.

Most LCPF supporters use automatic payroll deductions. This is the easiest way, and it helps both the donor and LCPF by spreading the donations across the year with a few dollars taken out of each paycheck. This gives the LCPF a steady source of income and the ability to plan how to best use the funds.

Both career carriers and city carrier assistants (CCAs) can sign up for LCPF donations through payroll deduction. CCAs must sign up again following a five-day break in service, and former CCAs who have converted to career status must sign up again following their conversion.

Active or retired letter carriers also can easily arrange for automatic deductions from a bank account, or for retired carriers, from their annuities.

NALC members have the option of making one-time contributions or supplementing their automatic donations by writing a check to the Letter Carrier Political Fund.

To sign up or get more information on how to donate, visit nalc.org/pac or use one of the forms on the following pages.

“We have enormous untapped potential in our members,” Renfroe said. “The sky is the limit, and we need to reach higher. I urge every single member of NALC to support the LCPF this year so the union can support you even better.” PR

NALC is fortunate that 93 percent of letter carriers choose to join our union. We have a history of successful organizing because our 290,000 active and retired members know our union delivers results that improve our jobs.

Many external factors affect our jobs as letter carriers, the main one being what occurs in the halls of Congress. Our elected federal officials have a say in the Postal Service's operations as well as our health care and retirement benefits.

Through our political action committee (PAC), the Letter Carrier Political Fund (LCPF), NALC has a voice in Washington; however, that voice could be much louder.

Currently, only 12 percent of NALC members give to the LCPF. With these contributions, NALC has worked to get pro-letter carrier candidates from both parties elected, participated in get-out-the-vote efforts nationwide and, most importantly, used our influence to help get postal reform enacted last year.

We have accomplished a lot with only 10 percent of members contributing. Imagine all we could achieve if every NALC member contributed even a small amount to the LCPF.

If the 93 percent of letter carriers who choose to be members of our union also decided to contribute to our PAC, NALC would undoubtedly have one of the most influential political voices on Capitol Hill. With an increase in contributors, our influence would grow and pave the way for the passage of our priority legislation.

Letter carriers know how to deliver. If we all contribute to the LCPF, we can deliver a loud and clear message to Congress: Letter carriers' voices matter and must be heard when legislation affecting our work and families is considered.

If you are already a contributor to the LCPF, I would like to thank you for your commitment to propelling NALC's legislative agenda forward.

If you haven't signed up to contribute yet, I encourage you to do so as soon as possible. No matter the size of your contribution, it will make a difference for you and our brothers and sisters.

In solidarity,

Brian L. Renfroe
President

By making a contribution to the Letter Carrier Political Fund, you are doing so voluntarily with the understanding that your contribution is not a condition of membership in the National Association of Letter Carriers or of employment by the Postal Service, nor is it part of union dues. You have a right to refuse to contribute without any reprisal. The Letter Carrier Political Fund will use the money it receives to contribute to candidates for federal office and undertake other political spending as permitted by law. Your selection shall remain in full force and effect until canceled. Contributions to the Letter Carrier Political Fund are not deductible for federal income tax purposes. Federal law prohibits the Letter Carrier Political Fund from soliciting contributions from individuals who are not NALC members, executive and administrative staff or their families. Any contribution received from such an individual will be refunded to that contributor. Federal law requires us to use our best efforts to collect and report the name, mailing address, occupation and name of employer of individuals whose contributions exceed $200 per calendar year. Any guideline amount is merely a suggestion, and an individual is free to contribute more or less than the guideline suggests and the union will not favor or disadvantage anyone by reason of the amount of his or her contribution or decision not to contribute.

How to contribute to the Letter Carrier Political Fund using your retirement ANNUITY

Using your Annuity, retired NALC members can contribute directly from their CSRS or FERS annuities to the Letter Carrier Political Fund (NALC's PAC) on a monthly basis. This is a convenient way to make regular donations to the political action fund similar to the payroll system available to active carriers.

Enroll by Phone

Call the NALC Retirement Office at 202.662.2877 anytime or toll-free at 1.800.424.5186 Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 10 a.m. to noon or 2 to 4 p.m. (ET). (Note: you will need your CSA retirement Claim number.)

Enroll Online

1. Go to www.servicesonline.opm.gov
2. Enter your CSA number, beginning with the letter A and ending with a zero. SAMPLE: A22222220
3. Enter your PIN (Personal Identification Number). If you don't know it, click Using Services Online for help with one.
4. Once you've entered your CSA number and PIN, click Log In.
5. On the next page, click ALLOTMENTS TO ORGANIZATIONS.
6. Click START
7. Select the Letter Carrier Political Fund (Formerly COLCPE)
8. Enter the amount of your monthly contribution. (Maximum yearly amount is $5,000)
9. Click SAVE
10. On the next page click YES (if correct), then print the next page for your records.

Enroll by Mail

By making a contribution to the Letter Carrier Political Fund, you are doing so voluntarily with the understanding that your contribution is not a condition of membership in the National Association of Letter Carriers or of employment by the Postal Service, nor is it part of union dues. You have a right to refuse to contribute without any reprisal. The Letter Carrier Political Fund will use the money it receives to contribute to candidates for federal office and undertake other political spending as permitted by law. Your selection shall remain in full force and effect until canceled. Contributions to the Letter Carrier Political Fund are not deductible for federal income tax purposes. Federal law prohibits the Letter Carrier Political Fund from soliciting contributions from individuals who are not NALC members, executive and administrative staff or their families. Any contribution received from such an individual will be refunded to that contributor. Federal law requires us to use our best efforts to collect and report the name, mailing address, occupation and name of employer of individuals whose contributions exceed $200 per calendar year. Any guideline amount is merely a suggestion, and an individual is free to contribute more or less than the guideline suggests and the union will not favor or disadvantage anyone by reason of the amount of his or her contribution or decision not to contribute.

Mutual Exchanges

AZ: Phoenix (9/15) to Charleston, WV; Lubbock, San Antonio, TX or surrounding areas. Call with any questions. John, 602-214-8785.

CA: Apple Valley (10/15) to Houston, TX area. Apple Valley is in Southern California. Looking for mutual exchange. 760-912-9276.

NY: Brooklyn (5/04) to any location in PR. Senior route; great neighborhood. Lydia, 646-271-1736.

NY: Jamaica (10/21) to Fort Myers, FL. Seeking mutual exchange. Andrew, 917-816-8170 (call or text) or andyfi01972@gmail.com.

How to place a Mutual Exchange ad

The cost of Mutual Exchange ads is $15 for up to 30 words and $25 for 31-50 words per month. Ads must be received by the 5th of the month preceding the month in which the ad will appear (e.g., February's deadline is for the March publication). Mail ad with check (payable to NALC) to: Mutual Exchange Ads, Postal Record, 100 Indiana Ave. NW, Washington, DC 20001-2144.

Ads are published for NALC members only. A branch officer or steward must endorse the ad to certify membership. Include your name, address and branch number. Begin each ad with your state abbreviation, city and seniority date.

Specific route information or mention of three-way transfers will not be published, nor any wording that offers cash or property to facilitate an exchange. Mutual exchanges must be approved by both postmasters involved. Seniority of carriers involved shall be governed by Article 41, Sec. 2E of the National Agreement. Carriers may not exchange assignments, since vacated positions must be posted for bids in accordance with local and national agreements.

Election Notices

Buffalo-Western New York

This is an official notice to all members of Branch 3. Nominations for president, executive vice president, vice president, secretary-treasurer, assistant secretary-treasurer, five trustees, sergeant-at-arms, director of retired members, editor and insurance representative will be held at 7:30 p.m. on March 12 at the Matthew Glab Post #1477, Lackawanna. The term of office for all of the positions will be for three years.

According to the bylaws of the branch, Article 5, Section 1(c) 2 states: "Acceptance of the nomination must be made verbally or in writing at this meeting. In the event a candidate is unavoidable detained, the candidate may designate any member in attendance at the meeting to accept the nomination on behalf of the candidate. Acceptance of nominations may also be submitted in writing to the Secretary prior to the meeting or no later than three (3) days after the close of the meeting.

Members who have held, accepted or applied for a supervisory position are ineligible to run for or hold office for a period of two (2) years after termination of such status. All candidates must verify, upon nomination that they have not served, accepted or applied for a supervisory position within the last 24 months."

Article 4, Section 2 states: "All officers as listed in this Article 4 section 1, by virtue of their election will automatically be delegates to the State & National Conventions provided each officer is actually holding office at the time of the convention."

Kim M. Fitzgerald, Sec.-Treas., Br. 3

Wisconsin

This is official notice to all members of the Wisconsin State Association of Letter Carriers that nominations and election of the following officers/executive board members will take place May 17-18 at the state convention in Green Bay: president, vice president, secretary, treasurer, director of retirees and five executive board members (one from each of the four districts; the fifth board member is from the state at large and will serve as the director of communications). The term for all offices will be two years.

There will also be the nomination and election of two alternate delegates-at-large to the 2024 national convention to be held in Boston, MA.

All nominations will come from the convention floor on May 17, and the election will take place May 18; the installation of officers shall be immediately preceding the close of the convention.

Robert D. Ahnen, Sec., WSALC

Help your NALC family affected by natural disasters

The NALC Disaster Relief Foundation provides hands-on relief for carriers affected by natural disasters, such as wildfires, hurricanes, floods and tornados. It receives donations to be used to assist regular NALC members affected by natural disasters.

NALC response teams throughout the country are activated to go to disaster locations and offer assistance to NALC members and their families who live in the same household. Basic supplies, including uniforms and food, are available for those who need assistance.

Financial support may be available depending on the availability of funding and qualifying criterias. Any regular member of NALC who has faced hardship as a result of a natural disaster will be able to apply for assistance.
